WEEKLY USA GRAIN AND PROTEIN REPORT -- April 12, 2025

This week was another tariff week but this one was combined with a USDA-WASDE week ---- certainly made everything very exciting and painful for some.

USA corn prices were up by about USD 12 on the week with US soybeans up by USD 22 m/t and soymeal up by about USD 15 m/t. USA hard red winter wheat was up by USD 5 m/t while soft red winter wheat was up by almost USD 10 m/t. USA spring wheat was also up by about USD 10 m/t.

According to the WASDE report both corn and soybeans will have lower than expected USA and world stock levels which certainly helped to push prices higher as the week ended. Overall, the WASDE report was seen as bullish for about everything. The tariff related weakness in the US dollar also helped to push prices higher.

Although many of the new tariffs (above 10%) have been delayed for 90 days and the stock market has rushed to recover, there is still quite a bit of worry in the grain/oilseed business. China, where all the tariffs still apply, is a major buyer from the USA for corn, soybeans, sorghum and DDGS ---- exporters are now looking everywhere for alternative markets.

Estimated Bulk Grain Freight in USD per m/t, basis heavy grains.

The USA/China trade tariff situation has created a great deal of confusion in the container freight market ---- China to US shipments are a large share of the container business and container lines are moving quickly to rearrange shipping schedules to reduce the China/USA – USA/China routings. Finding container freight for destinations from the USA that were serviced by routes that ended in China/Asia is difficult.

SECTION 2 --- FISHMEAL COMMENTS AND PRICES: PERUVIAN "INDICATION" FISHMEAL PRICES:

It has been announced that the next North/Central fishing season in Peru will begin on April 22. No quota has been advised yet but the trade seems to feel that it will be at 2.4 million m/t. The new quota will be published on April 16.

Fishing in the South of Peru has dropped off to almost nothing with only 2,900 m/t landed last week bringing the total catch up to 184,400 m/t which leaves 66,400 m/t available. Only about 10 vessels did any fishing last week.

Fishmeal prices in China are stable even though fishmeal shipments from the USA will be hit by the latest China import tariff of 125%. Last year the USA shipped about 60,000 m/t of fishmeal to China. In the scheme of things, USA fishmeal shipments to China are not particularly significant and will be easily replaced from other origins.

Advance fishmeal sales for the next fishing season are now reported to be at about 230,000 m/t which will be just over 40% of the next season's production, assuming a quota of 2.4 million m/t.

Fishmeal producer Exalmar has agreed to purchase Pesquera Centinela, which reports say could add as much as $500 million to Exalmar's annual sales. Details of the agreement have not been published,
